

Race Explanations

Jakkeit—Mostly populated in the Black Jungle and the Western Plains, the Jakkeit are a proud race of cat humanoids with a skill and love for battle. They travel in tribes or clans and each group has a (shivnasia) a speaker of the group who leads their people into battle and serves as a kind of chief. Each Jakkeit is born with the blessing of either the sun or the moon. This blessing will determine what kind of warrior they become.

Mott Hound—the Mott are humanoid dog people much like the feline Jakkeit only mott are canine. The Mott homeland is that of the Southern Islands and beyond. They are skilled in battle and differ in sub-races such as: Hounderman, Wolf Blood, Savastire, Kumostt, and Randerstalk. Mott have a highly advanced sense of smell, perfect for tracking others in the wilderness.

Wulfenstrag—The Wulfenstrag are best known for their ability to communicate and tame Ragnurals and other wolf-like creatures. They can only be born from the human bloodline and often have black or blood-red hair and yellow eyes. Their skin is a dark tan color and they have heightened senses granted to them by the blood within their veins. Wulfenstrag are fast and strong and have the ability to see a glowing red color where people's hearts beat in their chest. They are experts at tracking man or beast once they have their scent.